

Work Never Ends

With the ground loosened by a bountiful rain and with the radiant sun illuminating the greenery, who wouldn't want to step out of the house and work in the garden? Here 86-year-old Roy Mitchell, 733 East Third, seems to enjoy one of man's most basic professions — gardening. Although he had to use a chair, Mitchell kept hacking away at the weeds with his sickle, not wasting any time to gossip with the photographer. The Mitchells have lived in Sedalia for 20 years.

Guardsmen Sent to Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — About 2,000 National Guardsmen moved into assigned posts today to try to counter what officials called marauding bands of criminals who took part in three nights of disruptions.

Gov. Winfield Dunn ordered two battalions into the area late Sunday after Mayor Robert Kirk Walker said there had been a breakdown in local law enforcement capabilities. There were firebombings, sniper fire and rock and brick throwing through the weekend.

The disturbances were triggered by failure of a black rock performer to appear as scheduled at a concert in the city's Memorial Auditorium Friday night. Tension had been high following a racial incident at the city's Brainerd High School the day before.

Guardsmen were stationed at street corners in the downtown area after they were issued ammunition.

A group of more than 100 blacks, most of them in their late teens and early 20s, were ordered to disperse from outside the City Hall-Police Department complex.

The group scattered a few blocks away after about 20 Guardsmen with fixed bayonets pursued them. Two were arrested. At midmorning crowds of blacks were reported gathering at other points.

It was the first time the National Guard had been called out in connection with a Tennessee civil disorder since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was shot to death in Tennessee civil disorder since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was shot to death in Memphis in 1968. At that time 8,000 Guardsmen were deployed in Memphis and Nashville to quell disturbances which followed the King death.

Previously, the National Guard was deployed to Clinton, northwest of Knoxville, in 1956 when disturbances followed the integration of Clinton High School—the first school in the South to desegregate under federal court order.

Gene Roberts, the fire and police commissioner, said the disorders did not appear to be organized but were the result of guerrilla tactics by "irresponsible people on the prowl."

Most of the incidents have been in predominantly black neighborhoods, but Roberts said the violence was not black against white. "It didn't start that way and it isn't that way now," he said.

Police said the only person injured in the three nights was a 32-year-old Negro man who suffered small-caliber bullet wounds in the back and face. He was listed in fair condition Sunday.

Police said 64 persons arrested Sunday night brought the total arrested in the three nights to about 300 persons, most of them black. About half are charged with violating the Sunday curfew or a 7 p.m. to 8 a.m. curfew imposed Saturday night, and most of the rest were arrested early Saturday on disorderly conduct charges.

The disturbances Friday night began after rock performer Wilson Pickett failed to appear at a concert, saying he had not been paid in advance. Police said young blacks demanding return of their money ripped up seats and tore up the box office, causing an estimated $2,500 worth of damage.

Police said the youths then took to the streets and broke an estimated $8,000 worth of windows in nearby business firms.

Police ordered the streets cleared several hours after the incidents and then made their first arrests. Several persons arrested said they had nothing to do with the disorders, and their arrests reportedly heightened tensions in the black community.

Police said the marauding bands appeared late Saturday, relative calm was restored Sunday morning but the bands resumed their hit-and-run tactics Sunday afternoon.

Chattanooga has 119,000 residents, about 35 per cent of them nonwhite.

Police Are Seeking Consul's Murderers

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Police hunting the killers of Israeli Consul-General Ephraim Elrom concentrated their search today on a young married couple and seven young men.

Police sources said the couple rented the apartment in the fashionable residential district where Elrom's body was found Sunday during a house-to-house search by 30,000 police and troops.

The couple were identified as Neomi and Ilkay Demir, both university students in their early 20's. The seven other men named as suspects also were students.

Two of the men, Ertugrul Kurkcu and Yusuf Kupeli, are veterans of radical, anti-American youth movements.

As the troops and police pressed a house-to-house search for the killers, the government reportedly was considering an extension of martial law in several provinces. Martial law was imposed for one month in 11 provinces on April 26 after months of escalating terrorist activity.

Premier Nihat Erim messaged Israeli Premier Golda Meir: "I guarantee the Turkish government will do everything in its power to give these killers the penalty they deserve." But the kidnappers were still at large early today.

Elrom, 58, was seized a week ago by members of the Turkish People's Liberation Army. The kidnappers said they would execute the Israeli if the government did not release all "revolutionaries" it was holding. The government refused to bargain and started a sweeping roundup of leftists.

Elrom's body was found Sunday morning in an empty apartment in a fashionable residential district. His hands were tied behind his back, and he had been shot three times in the head. His captors had given the government until Thursday evening to meet their terms, but an army doctor estimated that he was killed between 5 and 7 p.m. Saturday, giving his murderers plenty of time to escape before the start at midnight of a 15-hour curfew ordered to aid the searches.

The owner of the apartment, a woman named Semih Olcayto, told police she rented it 45 days ago to two young men who said they were an engineer and an accountant. Police said five young men left the apartment Saturday night before the curfew and told the concierge he would be killed if he gave the alarm. He apparently heeded their warning.

A Turkish Air Force plane took Elrom's body and his widow back to Israel Sunday. Their only son was killed in a plane crash last year.

Mrs. Meir said the "senseless" killing was the work of "people who are not impressed by such things as humanity. This was a man who had done no wrong ... who was not involved in this problem of Turkey. They just took a man and killed him." However, both she and Foreign Minister Abba Eban said the Turkish government had done all it could to recover Elrom alive.

Nearly 1,000 persons have been taken into custody in the roundup since Elrom was kidnapped, but many have been released. The government drafted a bill to extend the death penalty to kidnapping, and after the body was found it was reported amending it to make other acts of political terrorism capital crimes. Erim called on Parliament to "promptly and without hesitation" pass the laws necessary to "deal a fierce blow to those who perpetrated this act."

Market Proposal Into Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath goes before the House of Commons today with the offer of Georges Pompidou on Britain's bid to join the Common Market.

The prime minister was to make a statement and then answer questions. Vehement foes of the linkup with the Continent were sure to give him a rough time, just as they gave Heath's chief Market negotiator, Geoffrey Rippon, when he reported last Monday on his talks in Brussels.

Political commentators believe the government will be ready to present final terms to the House of Commons by the end of June if the remaining Brussels negotiations go as smoothly as Heath's talks with Pompidou last week.

How the House will vote then is still in doubt. About 30 of Heath's Conservatives — equal to the government's majority — are known to be resolutely opposed to joining the Market. More than 100 members of the opposition Labor party are publicly committed to joining, but the party itself has not taken a stand.

Public opinion polls have been running about 60-40 against abandoning Britain's traditional aloofness from the Continent. The government and the Conservative party organization are expected to launch a concentrated publicity drive in an attempt to turn the tide.

The boost given to pro-marketters by Heath's "entente" with Pompidou raised the temperature of weekend speeches by leading Laborite opponents.

Former cabinet minister Barbara Castle said on television that the opposition would force a general election if the government tried to "railroad" the country into Europe on unacceptable terms. She said many people had been alarmed "by the almost girlish romanticism with which Mr. Heath had gone to Paris."

Peter Shore, another ex-minister, charged that Heath had made an "appallingly bad bargain." Enoch Powell, the Tory extremist, said feeling against entering the Market is mounting rapidly throughout Britain, and "the country wills that it will not happen."

Oppose War

Might Resign Over Ad Furor

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — One of 29 officers who signed a newspaper advertisement opposing the Vietnam war says he and some other signers are considering taking up a military offer to resign.

Maj. Stuart Freyer, an Army doctor at Ft. Bragg, said each man was questioned by his unit commander and was given the opportunity to resign. "We're considering it," Freyer said.

The 29 officers who ran their names with the quarter-page advertisement in the Fayetteville Observer at nearby Fayetteville included 28 Army officers and one Air Force officer. Freyer said 13 of the 29 are doctors. Three are majors, 14 captains and the rest lieutenants.

A Ft. Bragg public information spokesman, Maj. Jimmie Wilson, said Lt.

Gen. John Hay, commander of Ft. Bragg, was responsible for the officers being questioned.

Wilson said the interviewers told them that if they felt so strongly about the war they could resign. He said no action of any kind would be taken against the officers.

Freyer said the ad ran on May 15, and that on May 21 the unit commanding officers of the 29 men called each man in.

"We were given the opportunity to resign," Freyer said. "As I understand it, it would be under honorable conditions." He said he was unsure if the Army would then consider his military obligation complete.

Freyer, like two others contacted, was reluctant to talk about the ad. All three said they have not been pressured to resign and that they are not being harassed by the Army.

Maj. Jack I. Stein, a 30-year-old doctor from Brooklyn, N.Y., who has been in the Army one year, said he did not plan to resign.

Further, he said the Army officer who interviewed him was "quite understanding."

The advertisement said: "We, the undersigned concerned officers at Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base wish to make known our feelings about the immoral and wasteful war in which our country is embroiled. We agree with what we feel to be the majority view in this country that the war in Vietnam should end.

"We exercise our constitutional right to add our views to those who have already publicly spoken out. With them we demand the withdrawal of all American military personnel and advisors from that embattled land by the end of 1971."

The advertisement declared it was sponsored by the Concerned Officer Movement, which has national offices in Washington.

Stein said he is not a member of the Concerned Officer Movement.

Another doctor who signed the ad, Maj. Roger H. Stewart, 30, said that he was not a member of any antiwar group.

Stewart, who has been in the Army 10 months, said that as far as he knew there hadn't been any campaign to get the officers to sign the ad. He said he believed that the idea caught on through personal contacts.

A possible June hearing date was considered, but later rejected by local authorities. The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. in the Federal Building in Kansas City. It was not known who would represent HEW Thursday, but Brown and Norris and members of the Board of Education, plan to attend.

The primary purpose of the hearing is to consider charges of assigning students to schools on racial grounds.

The charge was filed in January after an HEW investigating team surveyed the Sedalia school system. Teacher assignment on racial ground was also claimed then.

Following a lengthy exchange of correspondence, HEW sent a second team

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A mistrial was declared today in the six-month-old kidnapping trial of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins, a local Panther leader.

Sedalians Charged In Theft

Larry Dean Miller, 23, 1524 East 24th, and John Edward Taylor, 17, 508 1/2 South Engineer, have been charged with second degree burglary and stealing in connection with the last Tuesday theft of $885 worth of coins, currency and merchandise from Hughes Apco service station, 808 East Broadway.

According to Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Miller and Taylor were arrested Saturday afternoon in Loveland, Colo., on suspicion of shoplifting.

The break-in at Apco station netted thieves the largest amount of cash and merchandise of eight break-ins in which more than $1,000 worth of cash and merchandise were taken last Monday night and early Tuesday.

Sheriff Fairfax said the pair have been implicated in several burglaries. Part of the stolen merchandise has been recovered, he added.

They are being held in the Laramie County Jail, Ft. Collins, Colo.

of investigators to Sedalia this month. They conducted a two-day study of the city's schools.

"The lawyer that was here for the government investigation...acknowledged that some of the information received from the original investigation last October was incorrect," Brown reported. The attorney he referred to was John Wodatch.

More specifically, Brown said that Wodatch had indicated "some of the charges related to teacher assignment" had been dropped and would not be considered at the hearing.

The HEW action has resulted in a freeze on future funds for the Sedalia school system.

Reset For Thursday

Delay Segregation Issue

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare notified attorney William F. Brown Monday morning there would be a one-day postponement in a hearing between HEW and the Sedalia Board of Education concerning charges of segregation.

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, reported Brown had notified him of the change. Brown represents the school board in the case.

It was indicated that an HEW attorney apparently found the original Wednesday hearing date inconvenient due to family reasons and had asked for another attorney to present the federal case.

At one point during the discussion between Brown and HEW, it was reported, a possible June hearing date was considered, but later rejected by local authorities.

The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. in the Federal Building in Kansas City. It was not known who would represent HEW Thursday, but Brown and Norris and members of the Board of Education, plan to attend.

Buchwald's column today appears in more than 350 newspapers around the world and is avidly read by millions. The writer has been called the most comic American observer of the world scene since Mark Twain.

Born in Mount Vernon, N. Y., on Oct. 20, 1925, Buchwald and his three sisters lived in an orphanage and a series of foster homes before finally settling in Queens with their father, Joseph, a curtain manufacturer. By then Buchwald was 16 and an indifferent student.

On his 17th birthday he joined the United States Marine Corps. He was assigned to the Fourth Marine Air Wing and spent three and a half years in the Pacific.

On his return to civilian life, Buchwald entered the University of Southern California. He wrote a column for the college newspaper and was managing editor of the campus humor magazine.

Without waiting for a degree, and driven by an urge to taste life in Paris, Buchwald left the university in 1948. He bought a one-way ticket to France with his war bonus check, and when his money ran out, took a job with "Variety" magazine in Paris.

In 1949 the writer presented a trial column to the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune. Composed of offbeat data on Parisian night life, it brought Buchwald a job on the staff.

By 1952 Buchwald's columns had become so popular they were brought to readers in the United States. Americans took to the writer's new brand of humor and within a few years Buchwald became a permanent fixture in the column-writing business.

Ann Landers

Wife Gives Advice On Keeping Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I read with keen interest the eloquent defense of The Other Woman, since I was victimized by one several years ago. Granted, there is some validity to her statement that a substantial marriage cannot be destroyed by a third party, but surely you know, Miss Landers, that NO marriage is completely shatterproof — day in, day out, 365 days a year.

There are periods in every marriage when a husband becomes restless, vulnerable — call it what you will — especially, if he is over 40 and not cutting the mustard. The best of men has been known to succumb to the charms of an opportunistic female who senses his insecurity and steps in at the propitious moment.

The wise wife doesn't become panicky and hysterical (a normal reaction when one considers the hurt). In other words she doesn't throw out the baby with the bath-water.

When it happened to me, I was non-accusatory, and patient. It paid off handsomely. My husband has thanked me repeatedly for my faith in him and I thank God for my faith in myself.

Please print this letter if you think it might help other wives who may be facing the same problem. It could get some tortured gal thru a crisis. — Mrs. Territorial Imperative.

Dear Mrs. T.I.: Thank you for a frank and mature account of how you met and successfully dealt with a difficult situation.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mad I can't see straight. I've been going with this clown for seven months. Less than sixty days ago he had a birthday. I bought him a beautiful gift. I don't mind telling you I shopped all over town and spent more money than I had a right to.

My birthday was yesterday. He took me to dinner. I waited all through the meal for him to pull something out of his pocket. Nothing happened. Just as we were about to leave the restaurant he handed me an envelope. I opened it and inside was a card on which he had written:

"Dearest Love: I know today is your birthday. I am sorry to tell you that your gift — a lovely mink jacket which I purchased at Martha Weathered's — was destroyed in the fire. Yours, Jimmie"

I managed a weak laugh, but believe me, my heart wasn't in it. If this is his idea of a joke I think I'd better find someone with a better sense of humor. What do you think? — Gift Rapped.

Dear Rapped: I hope the dinner was good because I have a hunch that's all you're going to get. Some joke.

Dear Ann Landers: Our only child is an adorable little girl of three. Before Linda was born my husband and I had long talks about how we would raise her. He decided she would be a participating member of the family — that we would take her everywhere. We felt this would give our child a feeling of security that so many children lack today.

We visit friends a couple nights a week. We always take Linda along. She is well behaved and sits quietly in the living room or, if she is tired, she finds a bed and goes to sleep on it. If she stays up late she sleeps longer the next morning.

Some of our friends have told us that they think this is bad for the child. What are your views? — Togetherness Parents.

Dear Parents: Three-year-olds don't belong everywhere. What's more, it's not healthy for a youngster to be fed a steady diet of adult conversation. I'm for togetherness, but I think you are overdoing it.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Chest Pains Require Visit to Your Doctor

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a lot and garden and don't like weeds, so I work some, but if I don't stop at the first warning and get to the house and to a chair I get considerable pain in my chest and right arm and generally up my left arm, too. Sometimes I feel choked. Usually I get relief in one to two hours. I don't want to go back to the hospital on my income of $75 a month. I am a long way past retirement age and otherwise in good health. In fact, I have survived my own cooking for about 17 years since my wife died. Here's hoping you can give me advice.

Dear Reader — Pain in the chest occurring with exertion is often due to heart disease. This can cause pain in both arms and the choked feeling which you describe. Episodes that last as long as one hour are unusual unless some damage to the heart has occurred. You should see your doctor, so that he can get a more detailed story of your symptoms, and perhaps do a heart tracing to see if there is any other evidence of heart disease. It is important enough to warrant your making the effort, sir.

Two other conditions that would cause recurrent problems of the type you describe are in a spasm or cramping in the esophagus and sometimes arthritis. Some people with a hernia of the upper part of the stomach through the diaphragm will have difficulties when they have been stooping over pulling weeds. This may cause the esophagus to have spasms or cause similar difficulties. In severe degrees, this can also cause referred pain to the arm.

If you simply can't afford to see a doctor — and I really can't see how you can afford NOT to see one — the only general advice I could give you without knowing more about your problem would be to reduce your weight. If you should be overweight, limit your fats and cholesterol along the lines I have discussed frequently in my column and, just in case your problem is related to a hiatal hernia, eat small meals frequently rather than large ones.

And don't involve your self in activities that require bending or stooping over. In fact, you could try a little test on yourself to see if you can tolerate about the same amount of exertion as long as you stay upright without developing the problem that you have described. If you can, this suggests a hiatal hernia. There is no substitute, though, for seeing your doctor.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is there any way to prevent prostate gland trouble in men after 65?

Dear Reader — It would be possible to prevent it by castration and taking female hormones, but most men aren't interested in this. Some older men escape prostate gland trouble, but most don't. It is not available yet, but some anti-sex hormone preparations tend to neutralize some of the effects of the male hormone and may be useful in preventing prostate trouble.

Airliner Crash

The newsmag indicates the area where Belgrade radio reported Sunday that a Yugoslavian chartered airliner with about 80 persons aboard crashed while landing at the northern Adriatic port of Rijeka. Only a few persons aboard the TU-142 AvioGenex plane survived, the radio said, terming the crash the worst air disaster in Yugoslav history. (UPI)

British Tourists Perish Aboard Yugoslav Plane

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A two-week Adriatic holiday ended before it started Sunday night in death for 72 British tourists aboard a Yugoslav charter jetliner that crashed and burned as it was landing at Rijeka airport.

A Yugoslav family of three also was killed, the organizers of the tour said, but the Yugoslav tour director and the four Yugoslav crew members escaped. The crew members were slightly injured.

It was the worst air disaster in Yugoslavia since September, 1966, when a British charter plane crashed near Ljubljana, killing 98 holidaying Britons.

The plane Sunday was a twin-jet TU134, built in the Soviet Union and flown by Yugoslavia's AvioGenex line. It had flown a load of British tourists from Split to Gatwick airport, 30 miles south of London, and was landing with the new group of tourists at the airport on the island of Krk, 20 miles south of this port on the northern Adriatic.

Airport officials said the skies were overcast and there had been rain, but weather conditions were suitable for a normal landing. Witnesses said the plane landed and taxied about 200 yards. Then the left wing broke off and the plane slewed around 180 degrees, flipped over and caught fire. A series of explosions followed.

Authorities said the passengers were held in their seats by their seat belts and burned to death, but the crew escaped because the control cabin broke off and did not burn.

The only surviving passenger, Jrajko Sarajic of the Yugoslav agency, said when he felt the plane breaking up, he unbuckled his safety belt and ran toward a crack in the tail, calling in English for others to follow him.

Meanwhile, the plane was in darkness and the passengers began to panic. A man shouted that everyone should be calm, the survivor continued, and at once the passengers fell silent.

But apparently no one followed Sarajic, who got out through the break in the fuselage.

The Yugoslav passengers killed were a professor at Zagreb university, his wife and 5-year-old daughter. They got aboard because a British family of three canceled their passage at the last minute.

Ten British children were among those killed.

Turkey Is Ravaged By Another Quake

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Survivors of Turkey's second killer earthquake this month mourned amid the ruins today while troops and volunteers searched for bodies. Officials said 800 or more persons were dead around Bingol, in eastern Turkey.

Mobile hospitals, soup kitchens and other emergency aid centers cared for the injured and homeless in the town, 90 per cent of which was destroyed in Saturday's quake.

Some survivors were still without tents. Provincial officials reported by radio-telephone, however, that food and water were adequate thanks to relief efforts by the army and neighboring towns.

Half the death toll was in villages scattered over the countryside 450 miles east of Ankara. Some outlying villages had still not been contacted.

Premier Nihat Erim toured the disaster area Sunday and said all that could be done was being done. He praised the work of volunteers and the assistance given by local army commanders and provincial governors.

Survivors told harrowing stories of entire families trapped in the ruins. The quake struck as many residents were preparing for bed. Failure of electricity supplies and rain hampered rescue work.

One 4-year-old girl was the only survivor of a family of 11. A neighbor adopted her.

Tearful women mourned relatives still missing but presumed dead, buried in their homes.

Survivors anxiously scratched in the ruins for relatives and friends. A reporter on the government radio, his voice breaking, said:

"Everyone, mothers, fathers, children, are milling round in streets blocked by rubble, looking for dead relatives. Families are still desperately searching the ruins for their children."

Erim said the high death toll was due to houses in the area being constructed of sun-dried brick which could not stand up to quakes.

"I can only hope we have no more disasters like this," he said.

The premier said all the homeless would have tents by today. Health precautions had been taken to prevent any outbreak of disease, he added.

Since 1966 yearly tremors have struck along the Anatolian Fault, a half-moon geologic formation starting near Burdur in southwest Turkey and running north inland from the Aegean Sea, east along the Black Sea and south into the mountains.

A quake at Burdur May 12 killed 57 persons.

Central Methodist Student Is Honored

FAYETTE, Mo. (AP) — The Rev. Leon F. Hanah got an honorary bachelor of arts degree from Central Methodist College Sunday at the age of 81—two years after he entered the school as a freshman.

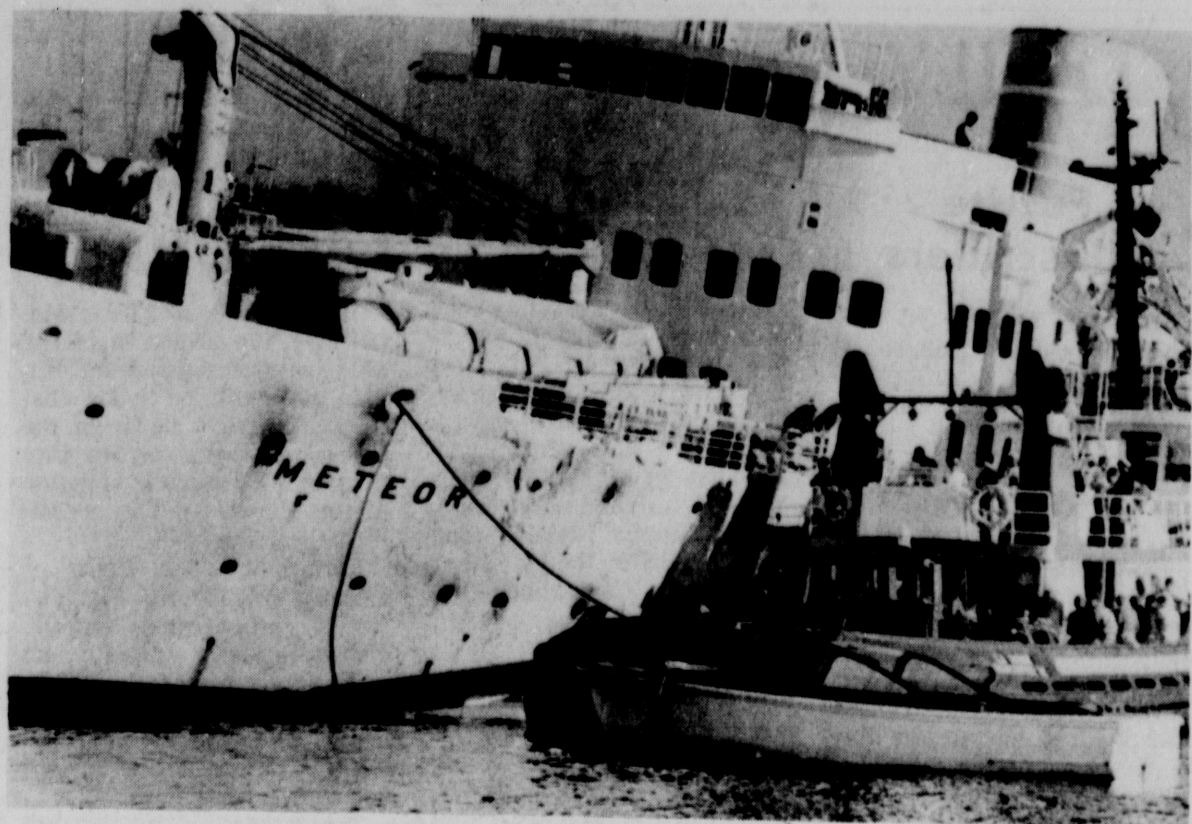

Hanah is a Baptist minister. He was a steelworker for 51 years in St. Louis before he retired in 1960. A heart attack forced him to discontinue his school work last winter.

The college also awarded degrees to 150 seniors and honorary doctor degrees to G. Duncan Bauman, editor and publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and the Rev. Robert D. Brown of the Kirkwood United Methodist Church in St. Louis.

Bauman was the commencement speaker.

The Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun, built in memory of the American humorist by his friend Spencer Penrose, overlooks Colorado Springs from Cheyenne Mountain.

Ill-Fated Ship

The cruise ship Meteor, with firefighting foam running from its deck, has its crew taken off for a trip to Vancouver late Saturday. The fire was extinguished late Sunday night and started to make its way to Vancouver under its own power. Fourteen bodies were brought to Vancouver during the night, leaving 18 still missing.

Senate Troop Fight Persists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's refusal to legislate a cutback in American forces in Europe by the end of the year leaves it still facing a demand that Congress force the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam on the same timetable.

Ken Moore Is Honored By Jaycees

Ken Moore, 619 South Barrett, was named a Junior Chamber International Senator at the Missouri Jaycee convention in Cape Girardeau Saturday. The award, the highest which a Jaycee can receive, was presented by the Sedalia Jaycees and the Missouri Jaycee executive committee.

Moore, who is presently serving as executive vice-president of the organization, has been a Jaycee for six years. He has served as vice-president and president of the Jefferson City Jaycees and as regional vice-president of the Missouri Jaycees. He has received many Jaycee awards including the Spark-Plug, Speak-Up, Key Man and Presidential Citation.

Last year Moore received one of five 50th Anniversary Medallions presented by the Missouri Jaycees. Others were awarded to Gov. Warren Hearnes, Sen. Stuart Symington, Atty. General John C. Danforth and Missouri Jaycee president, Ron Ohmes.

Saturday he was also presented plaques by the Hallsville and Centralia Jaycees for his achievements as a Jaycee and a Presidential Award of Honor from past state presidents, Ron Ohmes and Al Murfin.

At 27, Moore is one of the youngest Jaycees to have been so honored and only the third Sedalia Jaycee to be named. David Curry received a senatorship last year after eight years of service and Allen Hawkins was awarded the honor five years ago.

Opponents of the Vietnam withdrawal plan say the 61-36 vote last week against cutting the U.S. troop level in Europe from 300,000 to 150,000 men indicates the war zone proposal also will lose.

"It's enough of the same issue to make us feel that we have the votes to defeat the amendment," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

"But there will be some switches," Scott acknowledged. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, sponsor of the measure to require a U.S. cutback in Europe, disagreed. The issues are not parallel, he said.

"That's a war zone," Mansfield said. The Vietnam withdrawal measure, sponsored by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., and 24 allies, is gaining strength. It was defeated 55 to 39 last year.

The border issue of whether Congress should legislate troop deployment is certain to be a part of the debate expected next month on the Vietnam withdrawal measure. So will one of the major themes of the administration's argument against the Mansfield troop measure: That President Nixon should be left free to negotiate in an effort to obtain mutual manpower withdrawals, East as well as West.

Nixon has said a Vietnam withdrawal deadline would eliminate any incentive to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to negotiate. Despite the parallels, the Senate alliances certainly will shift when the Vietnam measure faces action.

Vancouver Ship Fire Is Probed

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Searchers comb the blackened interior of the Norwegian cruise ship Meteor for signs of 11 missing crew members today while the Norwegian consulate begins an investigation into the shipboard fire that killed 21 other crewmen.

The 67 passengers aboard the 300-foot vessel escaped without injury early Saturday when a fire began in the forward compartment housing crew members. Most survivors described their evacuation as calm and routine and praised the crew.

The ship came into Vancouver harbor Sunday afternoon, listing to port but showing little evidence of damage. The bodies of 14 crewmen were brought to Vancouver by tug early Sunday and searchers found seven other bodies aboard the ship after it reached port. The ship had carried a crew of 91.

Representatives of the Canadian Department of Transport and Royal Canadian Mounted Police went aboard as soon as the ship reached drydock. Reporters were not allowed aboard nor were they permitted to speak to the captain, identified by the ship's owners as A. Morner.

Tor Virving, Norwegian vice consul in Vancouver, said the consulate would conduct its own investigation. Meanwhile, two directors of Bergen Lines of Norway, owner of the vessel, were expected to arrive from Oslo today.

Virving said after inspecting the vessel that there was no reason to believe an explosion had preceded the blaze.

The Meteor was six hours from Vancouver and the end of an eight-day Alaskan tour when the fire began.

Sees Big Future Role For Vertical Takeoff Craft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., who sees the Navy caught in a squeeze between a rapidly growing Soviet fleet and a shrinking U.S. defense budget, says helicopters and vertical takeoff planes one day will play a greater naval role than today's supercarriers.

Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, argues that the Navy still needs a fourth nuclear-powered carrier, but concedes that the cost of the floating airfields—upwards of $800 million each—requires that the Navy devise alternate and less costly ways of doing its job.

"What the Navy needs," said Zumwalt in an interview, "... is a lesser number of carriers than we have ever had in the past, but more powerful and nuclear propelled, combined with a larger number of much less sophisticated and much less costly ships" equipped with helicopters and vertical takeoff aircraft.

A fourth nuclear carrier was sliced out of this year's Pentagon budget.

Questions and answers from the interview:

Q. Are you not approaching a situation where, because of budget stringencies, you will have a smaller fleet, but not the modernized fleet that you had hoped for?

A. First, the Soviet threat, as all members of the Executive Branch have thought about quite clearly, has grown markedly in recent years. The two areas of greatest growth have been in their strategic nuclear forces where they have achieved parity and are continuing to build, and in their Navy where they have come from way behind to a situation in having a very respectable navy indeed.

They have three times the number of submarines that we have. They will overtake us in the number of sea-based ballistic missile submarines in 1974, a figure which has been publicly announced.

Therefore, we are up against an enemy who is building at a literally fantastic rate, who is willing to devote a very high percentage of its gross national product to defense, and from within defense, a very high percentage to his navy because he recognizes the tremendous advantage that control of the seas would give him.

Faced with that kind of a threat, we simply must keep the procurement of new ships and new aircraft and the initiation of research and development going no matter how high a price we have to pay in the reduction of our existing shore establishment and ships.

Q. Is the recent Defense Department action postponing the new nuclear powered carrier and two frigates a sign that the hoped-for modernization of the fleet will fall short of your expectations?

A. I think, you really ought to check with Mr. Packard (Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard) to get what the decision means to him. He has made it clear that he's willing to consider the nuclear carrier again in the fiscal '73 budget.

Q. I understand the most recent price mentioned on the carrier was something over $800 million and your testimony indicated the price would go up another 100 million plus dollars if there was another year's delay. Is the Navy, because of what used to be called "gold plating" or because of inflation, being priced out of a truly modern, sizeable fleet?

A. No, not in my judgment. We are suggesting that what the Navy needs is... a lesser number of carriers, but more powerful and nuclear propelled, combined with a large number of much less sophisticated and much less costly ships.

These include a new sea control ship which will be relatively inexpensive and which will be capable of carrying a few helicopters and a few V-STOL (vertical and short takeoff and landing) aircraft, and do part of the job that the carrier has, but not all of it. They will include many small cheap escorts so that we will not have to buy a large number of nuclear frigates which we must have for the escort of our nuclear carriers in order to have the greatest amount of survivability.

Q. You mention a possibility of a smaller number of carriers. What is the objective number you are moving towards?

A. We've come from 24 down to 16. My view is that that is just about as low as we ought to come.

Q. The Soviet Navy has put a lot of work and development into ship-to-ship missiles. What are we doing to counter that?

A. We're working at full speed to get a capability ourselves to have a surface-to-surface missile on as many surface platforms as we possibly can.

Q. Would this be enough to protect the big carriers?

A. Yes. There is no doubt in my mind that the speed of the nuclear carrier, the capacity to maintain a very high speed for a protracted period of time—coupled with the weapons that the nuclear escorts will carry, coupled with the tremendous capability that the F-14 will give us against both aircraft and missiles, coupled with our capability of other systems to deal with submarines—that we can have a high degree of survivability for our carriers.

Tom Dodd Is Dead At 64

OLD LYME, Conn. (AP) — Former Sen. Thomas D. Dodd, D-Conn., whose 1967 censure by the Senate for alleged misuse of campaign funds led to his political downfall, died Monday of a heart attack.

Dodd, who turned 64 last Wednesday, was "enjoying a quiet evening at home" when he collapsed, according to his daughter, Martha Bonnano. "He died instantly," she added.

She said there had been no indication he was in ill health, but he had suffered a heart attack in June 1970.

Joseph Barabette, press aide for Dodd during his last term in the Senate, said, however, Dodd had told him in a serious moment a week ago: "I'm not going to live very long."

Dodd planned to reregister with the Democratic party this week but had no definite plans of seeking public office again, said Barabette.

Dodd, first elected to the Senate in 1958 after serving two terms in the House of Representatives, was censured by the Senate in 1967 for allegedly using at least $6,083 in campaign funds for personal purposes.

He staunchly maintained he had done nothing wrong, and he noted that he was never charged with any criminal wrongdoing.

He decided against seeking the Democratic nomination for re-election to a third term last year and ran as an independent in the general election, placing third behind Republican Lowell P. Wicker Jr., the winner, and Democrat Joseph Duffey.

His independent candidacy, he said, was to give the voters of Connecticut an opportunity to decide his guilt or innocence on the Senate censure.

There was some speculation that he was thinking about running for the House next year.

Dodd was a giant in the campaign for stricter gun controls and a strong anti-Communist crusader, warning against U.S. support for Fidel Castro in the days when the Cuban prime minister was still leading a small band of ragged revolutionaries in the hills.

After World War II, Dodd, an attorney, was chief trial counsel at the Nuremberg war crimes trials. One of his last public efforts was to try to free Rudolf Hess, a onetime associate of Adolf Hitler, convicted at the trials.

officiating, assisted by the Rev. O. L. Taylor.

Fires In The City

Sedalia firemen responded to three fire calls on Sunday. No damage was reported, however. The first alarm, at 5:12 a.m. came from 1844 West Third. It was a false alarm.

A broken tree limb, which snagged on a power line, sent firemen to 1509 East 13th at 5 p.m. The Missouri Public Service Co., officials were called to replace a telephone pole which had blown over at 10th and Summit.

A tree was knocked down at 1510 West 10th about 7:30 p.m. and about two hours later police received word that power lines were down at 1218 Liberty Park.

There were several instances of power failure in the city and rural areas, but none lasted longer than an hour, it was reported.

Police Report

Sacred Heart School, Third and Vermont, was illegally entered over the weekend and a pencil sharpener was taken, a pane of glass was broken and four books were damaged by rain.

At 8:02 a.m. Monday, Sister Laura informed police that a break in had taken place. Police investigators who went to the scene said entrance to the building was gained through a window, which may have been unlocked.

Damage estimates and the value of the pencil sharpener was not available.

Accidents

A 1948 Seagrave fire truck, driven by James J. Cable, 47, 1101 South Monticue, collided with a parked car at 8:42 a.m. Monday at Second and Kentucky.

The accident apparently occurred as the fire truck was making a right turn off Kentucky and collided with the right rear fender of a 1965 Chevrolet. The car had been parked by Carol Meunier, 20, Columbia. Damage to the car was minor.

There was no damage to the fire truck, which was responding to a call from the Royal Hotel building, Third and Ohio, where a pane of glass threatened to fall to the pavement. The glass was removed by firemen.

Power Lines, Trees Blown Down in Storm

High velocity winds, which blew through Sedalia Sunday, apparently did little permanent damage, but downed power lines and fallen trees created some temporary hazards.

The force of the storm felled one large tree in the 1200 block of South Ohio and a downed tree at 300 West 10th blocked the street until city workmen cleared it away. Only moments later, Missouri Public Service Co., officials were called to replace a telephone pole which had blown over at 10th and Summit.

A tree was knocked down at 1510 West 10th about 7:30 p.m. and about two hours later police received word that power lines were down at 1218 Liberty Park.

Rights Ruling On Club

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights ruled today that the "all white" clause in the bylaws of the Jefferson City Country Club is not in violation of the Missouri public accommodations law.

Former State Sen. Richard J. Chamier of Moberly, Mo., the commission chairman, said the club was clearly a private club and so not subject to the public accommodations law.

But he did say the "all white" clause is "ill-advised and should be removed."

The charges against the club were brought by a Negro legislator, Rep. J. B. "Jet" Banks, D-St. Louis. He charged that the club numbered among its members top officials of state government, including Supreme Court judges. He also charged the club borrowed federal funds.

"No evidence was adduced to indicate that any elected official of the state had participated in the original establishment or the maintenance of the 'all white' clause of the bylaws," Chamier wrote, "or that any official had knowledge that such a clause existed prior to March 1971."

"No criticism of any official of the state can properly be made because of an association with the club and the investigating commissioner rejects any direct or indirect criticism of officials who belong. To do otherwise would be to convict them by 'guilt of association' a vehicle not properly used in these days."

Chamier said "there was no proof at all that the organization had borrowed any federal funds, but if it were assumed that such was so, no violation of Missouri law would exist."

He said it would be up to the club itself whether the "all white" clause is deleted from the bylaws but "the maintenance of the clause, from this date on, must necessarily be found to not encourage fair treatment for all racial groups and to not foster mutual understanding and respect among all racial groups."

He said the Jefferson City Country Club should not be singled out for criticism. "Prejudice and improper discrimination can be found all over the state," Chamier said.

He pointed to Missouri's Sunday sales act, which bars the sale of some articles but allows the sale of food.

Chamier said the law discriminates against those who worship on Saturday instead of Sunday.

Argentine Officials Confused

ROSARIO, Argentina (AP) — Twenty-four hours after the abduction of the honorary British consul in Rosario, Argentine authorities were today without word of the intentions of the leftist terrorist group which carried out the first political kidnapping in Argentina in 12 months.

A communique left in a downtown bar by the Revolutionary Army of the People said Stanley E.M. Sylvester, 58, would be "at the disposition of popular justice." There was no mention of any ransom.

With the communique was Sylvester's identification card. The communique linked Sylvester's abduction to the second anniversary of the death of Luis Norberto Blanco, 15, a leftist killed in a gun battle with police here in 1969.

Sylvester, a director of the Swift meat packing company in Argentina, was seized Sunday outside his home by three armed men who forced him into a car. The car was later found abandoned a few blocks away and identified as stolen.

Three thousand police fanned out through this city of one million persons to hunt the terrorists. The government of Santa Fe province announced it was taking "all possible measures" to find the kidnapers.

Columbia Inmates Escape

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Four inmates of the Boone County Jail at Columbia, each being held for trial, escaped early today after pistol-whipping a deputy sheriff, Jack Elkin, sheriff, said.

The sheriff said Deputy Claude McDonald, who was struck several times on the head, was undergoing surgery at the Boone County hospital. He was reported in fair condition.

Elkin identified the escapees as Jerry Acton, 19, of Columbia, who was being held on a forgery charge and for parole violation; Frank Pospeshill, 48, Ravenna, Neb., on a charge of attempted theft; Carl Roberts, 18, Centuria, Mo., on a charge of breaking and entering and for parole violation and Kenneth Worth, 29, Kansas City, on charges of auto theft and robbery.

Worth was arrested in a high-speed chase April 23 just hours after being released from the Missouri Penitentiary. He was returning to Kansas City by bus after serving six years for stealing and breaking jail.

The highway patrol said Worth got off the bus in Columbia and forced his way into a woman's car. About 10 miles west of the city he reportedly forced the woman from the car and took $30 from her at knifepoint.

In December, 1964, Worth was sentenced to five years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill in connection with the death that year of a Kansas City, Kan., woman.

He was granted a bench parole in the case, but the parole was revoked in October, 1965.

Perhaps it's a natural result of last year's surprise and losses caused by Southern Corn Leaf Blight. Perhaps it's the normal concern of any producer for his crop. In any case, crop scientists at the University of Missouri-Columbia have been getting a lot of calls from worried corn growers.

Their answers can be boiled down to this: Don't worry, it's not corn blight. Not yet.

"Certain rumors have been spreading in parts of the Corn Belt regarding seedling losses from Southern Corn Leaf Blight," plant pathologist Einar Palm reports. "These rumors are entirely unsubstantiated."

"These worry stories grow and spread as fast as blight spores," comments Agronomist Bill Murphy.

Palm, Murphy, plant pathologist Oscar Calvert, and plant breeder M. S. Zuber at UMC have all received urgent calls for advice about real or imagined problems in this year's corn.

"Some of the corn seedling deaths have been a result of the late freezes and frosts," these crop scientists report. "Also, some of the seed was of poor quality this year and this can give a lot of trouble, especially when it is planted early."

Some of the problems with early corn have been caused by nutritional deficiencies which, in turn, are related to the cool, dry weather of early spring. And, there have been reports of poor corn stands that were caused by blackbirds eating the seeds out of the fields.

Up to this time our state-wide monitoring program has no report of any kind of blight in Missouri, Palm reports.

Flea beetles have been causing worrisome blotches on corn and there have looked to some growers like SCLB damage. The beetle activity has been widespread in Missouri and bacterial infections have been noted in lesions on the leaves of young corn where the beetles have fed.

"These lesions are Stewart's disease and should not be confused with any blight. The flea beetles appear to be leaving the corn, now. Since most hybrids in use today have resistance to Stewart's disease, the corn can generally be expected to recover," Palm reports.

Alfalfa Weevil

Two University of Missouri-Columbia Extension workers have put together some recommendations on ways to help protect alfalfa stands from onslaught of the alfalfa weevil.

The weevil, present in greater than ever numbers, is chewing away at alfalfa fields throughout the state, according to Howell Wheaton, Agronomist, and James Huggans, entomologist.

Aggravating the problem, Wheaton says, is that the generally open winter, moderately cold over a considerable time, was tough on alfalfa. Where fertility was low, winter damage was worse.

After cutting remove foliage as cleanly as possible to expose larvae to the elements. If they are observed feeding on regrowth after cutting, chemical spraying the stubble is recommended.

Immediately after the first cutting, fertilize weak alfalfa stands. Use a mixture like 0-40-120. Use the same fertility treatment for alfalfa cut at the bud stage.

Wheaton cautions against mowing alfalfa as close to the ground as possible to control weevils. If there has been only slight heaving, the mower will cut into crowns and kill plants, he points out.

Newly emerging adults are difficult to control. At that stage of maturity, only methyl parathion and possibly Imidan have shown promise, says Huggans.

Soybeans

Soybeans have a great ability to adjust to differences in stand. For this reason, The University of Missouri College of Agriculture has seen no great reason in the past to "pinpoint" planting rates for different varieties of varying seed size. The general recommendation, which is still sound, has been 30 to 45 pounds per acre of seed for drilled beans, with adjustments between these figures for intermediate row widths. There may be reason to exceed these rates by one-third to one-half on heavy clay soils where crusting is expected, to help the beans break through. This heavy a stand, however, is to the beans disadvantage after they emerge.

Though some states have higher recommended seeding rates than Missouri, there is beginning to be considerable recognition that soybeans are generally being planted too thick.

High seeding rates result in decreased stem diameters, and increased plant lodging. Lodging often results in decreased yields directly and commonly means more beans are left in the field when harvesting. As soybean yields go above 40 bushels per acre, lodging could well be the greatest limiting factor to still higher yields. Thick stands of soybeans are not necessary to get yield.

Soybean herbicides have reduced the need for thick planting to crowd weeds out of the row. Good germination of seed removes the need to overplant to insure a stand.

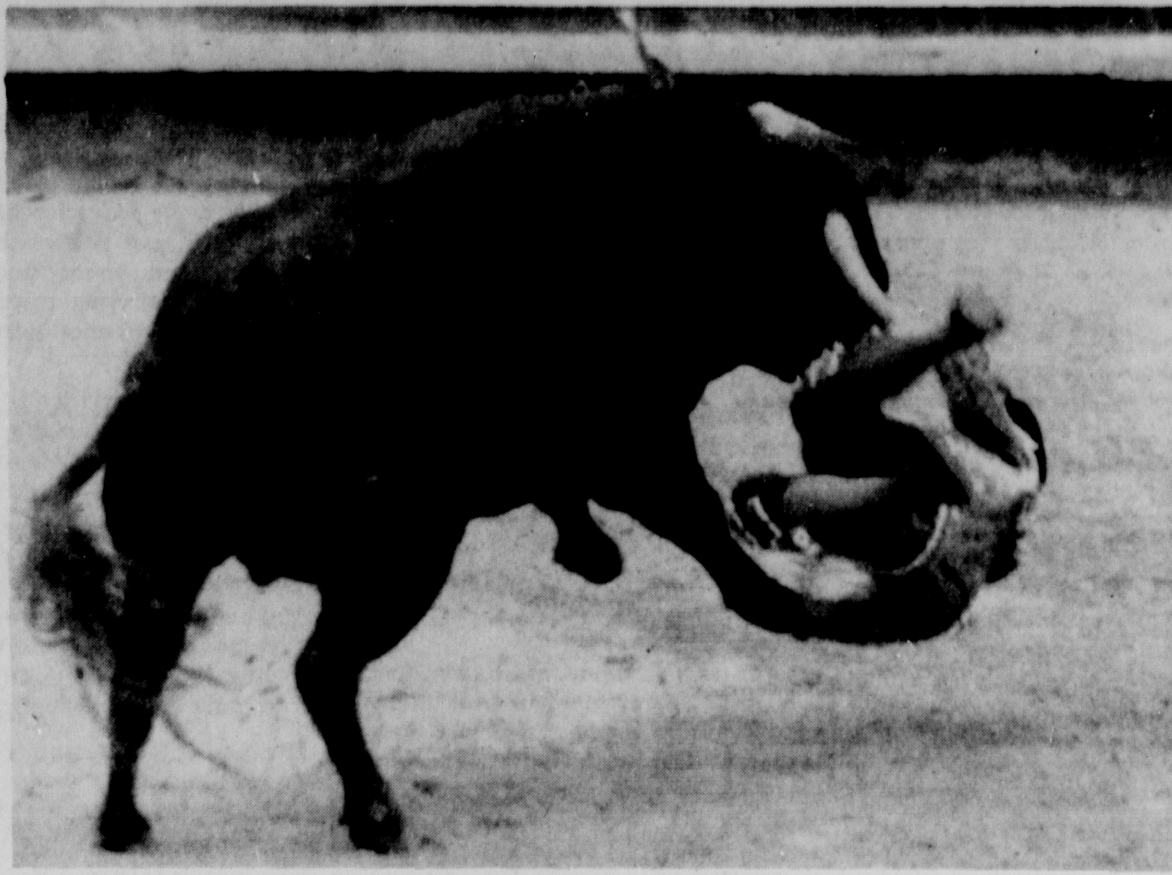

Results obtained at the University of Illinois, Ashland, Illinois in 1969 gives support to the idea that excessive populations cause competition for light, moisture, and nutrients, often resulting in early lodging, lower yields and greater harvesting problems, especially for those people operating a higher yield levels.

As seeding rates increased, the yields went down, but as even the lower rate is sufficiently high, yields at even lower seeding rates may have been higher. Unfortunately, no populations were low enough to show where yield reduction would occur from reduced seeding rates.

Which is better — to lower overhead costs per bushel, per ton, or per hundred weight by working more acres, or to produce more per acre on your present acreage? For a short, quick answer — do both, but do them in the right order.

Take advantage of lower total cost per unit produced by first producing on your present acreage at the most profitable level for that acreage. When you get to the point where you are

Now Is Time to Prepare 'Mums'

Though spring flowers may have just finished blooming, it is time to begin preparing chrysanthemums for their fall display.

If you have not moved or divided old plants you still have time — until about the end of May. Most mums should be divided at least every two years. Vigorous types often need yearly division.

When dividing chrysanthemums, replant sections with only one shoot — at most two. Diseased plants should be discarded.

Verticillium wilt is a mum disease easily moved with plants. This fungus builds up in the soil and invades the plant's water conducting vessels. The result is slow wilting, yellowing, and dying of leaves from the base of the plant upward. The plant may die eventually.

Sometimes it is possible to save a variety by removing cuttings early in the season when new growth is only about two inches long. These cuttings root easily in sand or vermiculite. They can be planted in a new location where the disease has not been a problem.

Leaf spot is another disease with a similar appearance. It first attacks the lower leaves, forming yellow to dark brown spots and kills leaves at the base of the stem. Control this disease with sprays or dusts of a fungicide such as zineb or captan.

Aphids may also be a problem now. Control them with malathion sprays. Some systemic insecticides will also control this pest as well as leaf miner, another common insect problem.

For plants that are low and mounded in the fall, do some pruning now. Cut or pinch back plants to about three inches. If the plant has been very vigorous, this may mean a fairly heavy pruning.

When new growth is about six inches long, again pinch out the terminals. Generally, no variety should be pinched after July 15. Early flowering varieties should not be pinched that late. The very early summer-flowering mums should not be given any pruning or pinching.

Sometimes plants flower poorly or not at all. There may be one or more reasons for this. If plants are pinched too late in the summer, shoots do not develop well enough for flowers to form.

Some varieties are heat sensitive. High late summer temperatures cause heat delay of flower bud formation and buds do not have time to develop before frost.

Too much shade causes plants to be too tall and then, these plants flower poorly or not at all. For best performance, chrysanthemums must be grown in full sun.

Tarnished plant bud sometimes prevents flower formation. It feeds on the tips of shoots causing them to be stunted or deformed.

Severe Weather In Area

KANSAS CITY (AP) — More thunderstorms rolled over most of eastern Kansas and western Missouri Sunday night.

Tornado warnings had been issued in the afternoon for most of Kansas and much of western Missouri.

Tornadoes were reported in Lyon County, Kan., near Emporia, and in Shawnee County, south of Topeka. Heavy thunderstorms raked southwestern Kansas with one-half inch hail and winds up to 40 miles per hour at Dodge City.

There were severe thunderstorms in Atchison, Nodaway and Worth Counties in northwestern Missouri, at St. Joseph, Mo., and east of Wichita. Weather service radar sighted tornadoes 10 miles west of Matfield Green in Chase County, Kan., and by the public 10 miles west of Rolla, Mo.

A small tornado struck the municipal airport at Fort Scott, Kan., and ripped off the roof of the main hangar. Four planes were damaged.

Bill Shirley, airport manager, estimated damage at between $15,000 and $20,000. Shirley said while he and his three sons had gone to the hangar to secure the planes, the twister lifted himself and one son off the ground. No one was injured.

"The storm took our beacon tower and twisted it like a pretzel," Shirley said.

New Testing Program For Hog Breeders

On-the-farm swine performance testing has started in the Show-Me Area in Lafayette County with Omar and Paul Brandt, Concordia. This is a new approach to swine evaluation, according to Ed Schwitzky, area livestock specialist.

The Brandts will be hosts to the Area Hampshire Swine Day on July 18 at their farm three miles north of Concordia. The records should be nearly complete on the pigs on that date.

The purpose of the "on-the-farm" testing program is to identify more genetically superior breeding stock than is now possible in the swine evaluation stations. The traits being measured are economic traits that should mean more net income to hog producers.

Three pens of pigs on test and includes 34 head. They are being fed as a sire group. The pigs averaged 60 pounds as of May 7, when the test started.

Feed records are being kept to measure feed efficiency by sire group. Each pig will be scored for age at 220 pounds. The pigs will also be sonorated for loin eye and backfat at 220 pounds.

United Fund Feels A Financial Pinch

The Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund is beginning to hear the first real cries from a financial pinch that has been building for several years now.

Special hearings already have been held with the Red Cross and Salvation Army, both of which want more money, although none will likely be provided, economic realities being what they are. Other agencies are equally concerned.

The problem is not unique to Sedalia, but is nationwide. The charity business is depressed.

Various reasons can be given for the trend: unemployment, inflation, the generally slow pace of the American economy. Some would add to this a feeling on the part of the average citizen that he has reached his saturation point as far as charitable giving is concerned, although this often is not really the case.

Whatever the causes, the result is a fiscal squeeze that is putting increasing pressure on agencies such as the United Fund to meet their commitments.

Look at the local situation for instance.

For the last few years giving to the United Fund has tended to level off in the $84-$85,000 range, after coming up from $77,000 five years ago.

Yet agency budget requests to the United Fund have exceeded $100,000 for the past few years. This year they totaled $107,707, exclusive of the UF unpaid pledge reserve of $4,000.

The costs of providing agency services continue to climb, as do such items as rent, utilities and other overhead expenses. The current United Fund leadership has pledged to find ways of trimming these costs, a commendable goal so that more United Fund dollars can find their way directly to helping meet human needs.

In the meantime, it wouldn't hurt us all to attack the problem from another approach, by re-examining our level of giving to the United Fund prior to the campaign this fall.

A New 'Discipline' For Organizations

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Caught in the vice of rising expenses and the public's lowered tolerance for high prices and waste, America's nonprofit institutions are discovering the disciplines of business.

Elementary school principals are experimenting with cost accounting after being compelled to do so by taxpayers, who insisted that little-used programs and unneeded facilities be abandoned.

Churches are opening their books to the scrutiny of parishioners in hopes that they can better convince them that donations are needed. But in so doing, they are employing rigid bookkeeping in the best business manner.

Universities, whose attitude toward financial discipline was notoriously negative until they discovered themselves on the final precipice, are demanding from their investment advisers a greater return on stocks.

And the medical services, where expensive facilities and equipment were easily justified on humanitarian grounds, are ripping a page from the corporate guidebook to experiment with the conglomerate form.

In the business world, a conglomerate is a corporation made up of diverse and related companies, huddled under one corporate umbrella in hopes that each might shelter the other from the vagaries of the marketplace.

Hospital administrators have been watching. Although new to the game, early indications suggest that they may have considerable success, although conclusive results might not be available for a year or so.

Attempts at uniting hospitals — and sometimes clinics, nursing homes and other facilities — are under way in several cities, notably Phoenix, Ariz., and Greenville, S.C., and soon perhaps in Milwaukee and Boston.

The largest conglomerate is the Samaritan Health Service of Phoenix, a combine of nine hospitals ranging from 14 beds to the 724-bed Good Samaritan Hospital.

Obviously a 14-bed hospital far from the core city could hardly provide full services.

But by joining into a larger unit, all nine hospitals, it was believed, could benefit from economies of scale in purchasing, laundries, computer services and a dozen other areas. Duplication could be reduced.

The result, in theory, should be better and more efficient medical service. Has it worked out that way? Stephen Morris, Samaritan president, thinks that to a large extent it has, although the conglomerate has existed only since 1968.

"I think that we can show that patients not only are getting better quality and more comprehensive care, but that medical services are more accessible to them," he said in an interview.

"The cost factor is questionable," he said, although he is confident it will work out.

Movie's Escapism Is Only Temporary

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — In the last few years I've been to the movies just often enough to keep up with the location of the popcorn machine.

So I'm no critic.

But I know a little something about the tonic qualities of laughter.

Rowan

And I know the joyful nostalgia of boyhood revisited, of escaping backward into an era when nothing consumed heart and mind more than the infatuation of a 15-year-old for a woman of 22.

I went to see it as an escape from politicians arguing about railroad strikes, troop withdrawals from Europe, and balance of payments problems.

It was a perfect escape. You don't look at Jennifer O'Neill and think about preventive detention—except of you detaining her.

But Robert Mulligan and Richard A. Roth have produced an enchantingly honest film of teen-age boys learning about "life," and it is long after your stomach stops shaking with laughter that you begin to think about censors and pornography and our present-day trauma over sex.

You watch this movie sharing a teenager's crush on Jennifer, but you wind up with a wistful feeling that you have been submerging an old love affair with those tranquil, carefree days of 1942 which the movie recalls so poignantly.

I am writing about that movie, in fact, because so many Americans are clutched in an embrace with what they call "the good old days." They write to me as though they believe that hidden somewhere beneath our ugly headlines and woe-is-the-world copy there is still a sweet America where a young man needs only an ice cream cone and a girl with a bulging bustline to get "turned on."

It is as though readers think children now need drugs for kicks, and gangsters flourish, and politicians bicker, and races fight, and young people live together without marrying, primarily because those are the things emphasized on TV and in the press.

"I'm convinced that you are constitutionally unable to write about the good things, the pleasures of life in this country," one woman chastized me.

I was trying to prove her wrong when I set down those paragraphs about "Summer of '42." I wanted to tell everyone to go see it and laugh, and maybe cry a little, and we could all swear that the intervening 29 years haven't done anything bad to this country and live happily ever after.

But that woman critic is right. I'm constitutionally unable to plunge into an hour and 45 minutes of celluloid escapism and stay there.

The more I thought about the movie, the more I thought about that real summer of '42 and how it was full of trouble a lot bigger than most of us want to remember.

There were economic miseries and war then, too. We just weren't fighting each other so angrily at the same time we were fighting strangers.

What, I asked myself, are the chances that this country can ever rediscover the sweet tranquility that the middle-agers like to remember from those summers three decades ago?

The answer is that there is absolutely no chance until the government and the people stop "escaping" and make some bold, even revolutionary, commitments to social and economic justice.

So I have to say to that woman critic and others like her:

Go on to "Summer of '42" and ease your tensions. But we'll be around with the same old proddings and exhortations when you come back.

Hanoi Hand In Protests A Mistake

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Probably the most stupid mistake of the Hanoi government in the Vietnam war to date is its attempt to enter directly into contact with the U.S. antiwar movement and openly attempt to direct and coordinate the activities of American protest groups.

Cromley
fore July 4, 1971."

The message emphasized what a "necessary" and useful function she is performing toward ending what Hanoi called Nixon's "criminal aggressive war."

The broadcast, which expressed "the support of the Vietnamese women" for Mrs. Abzug's activities, came from Deputy Le Thi Xuyen, vice president of the (North) Vietnam Women's Union, an official government organization.

Five days later, Radio Hanoi announced that Hoang Minh Giam, North Vietnam minister of culture, had sent a message to "antiwar fighters in the United States to express warm sympathy with the new antiwar campaigns in the spring" and to express appreciation to the leaders for the help they were giving Hanoi in the war.

Hanoi has given Giam the job of developing contacts, cooperation and "solidarity" with U.S. antiwar groups.

There is evidence that Hanoi is making an attempt to coordinate the activities of American antiwar groups with its military and psychological offensives in South Vietnam.

Xuan Thuy, head of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris talks, seemingly attempted to take a direct hand in the American protest movement when he sent a message to leaders a short time back urging that they quit their quarreling and unite all antiwar groups so as to make their demonstrations more effective. Some observers claim his advice was taken and a major split averted.

This is not to imply that the protest movement is largely composed of young men and women who follow the Hanoi party line.

It is to say, however, that Hanoi is making the attempt to guide and coordinate. And in making the attempt, inevitably, it will weaken the movement. For few people welcome interference by foreign governments in their internal affairs.

And that, I think, applies to most individual protesters as well as the American public at large.

South Viets Holding Edge, Kissinger Says

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — National security adviser Henry Kissinger has reported to President Nixon that the South Vietnamese have gained the edge in the Indochina fighting.

Kissinger is the President's chief watchdog over the Indochina war. In a summary prepared for the President, Kissinger declares flatly: "Our assessment is that the balance in the Indochina peninsula has swung in favor of the South Vietnamese."

We have seen a copy of Kissinger's summary, which was circulated to only a few key White House aides. It gives the final results of the South Vietnamese drive into Laos.

"As Ambassador (Elsworth) Bunker has reported," writes Kissinger, "the (Laos) operation has created confidence among the South Vietnamese in the ability of ARVN (the army)...There has been satisfaction in the fact that the fighting has been taken outside the borders of South Vietnam and that ARVN has been able to inflict far heavier casualties on the enemy."

As evidence of this, Kissinger asserts: "We estimate that the equivalent of 13 enemy maneuver battalions were rendered ineffective in the course of the fighting whereas only four out of the 22 ARVN battalions were put out of combat."

"Some reports of enemy losses in Vietnam in the past may have been exaggerated, but this time the estimate may be low. The enemy acted more aggressively than he had in several years with the result that he exposed himself to concentrated allied firepower and air attack."

"Thus, we believe the ratio of enemy to friendly losses was at least 5 to 1, a very high price for Hanoi to pay."

***

Kissinger suggested to the President that the Laos drive probably forestalled an enemy offensive. Otherwise, "the North Vietnamese would have had the real option of launching major attacks against ARVN and US forces located in the northern provinces of South Vietnam," says the national security aide.

"Looking to the future," he adds, "we believe that the short-fall in their supply efforts will prevent them from mounting major offensives in South Vietnam in this dry season and will delay any offensives they might have planned over the next dry season."

To hide their weakness, he warns the North Vietnamese "may be willing to spend additional manpower in the days immediately ahead by trying to mount a sharp flurry of attacks in the northern part of South Vietnam and elsewhere..."

"Such attacks may be specifically directed against US units in an endeavor to increase American casualties, whatever the cost to Hanoi. Nonetheless, the communists probably have lost the ability to mount sustained major offensives, and the overall record of communist activity over the next few months can be expected to support this contention."

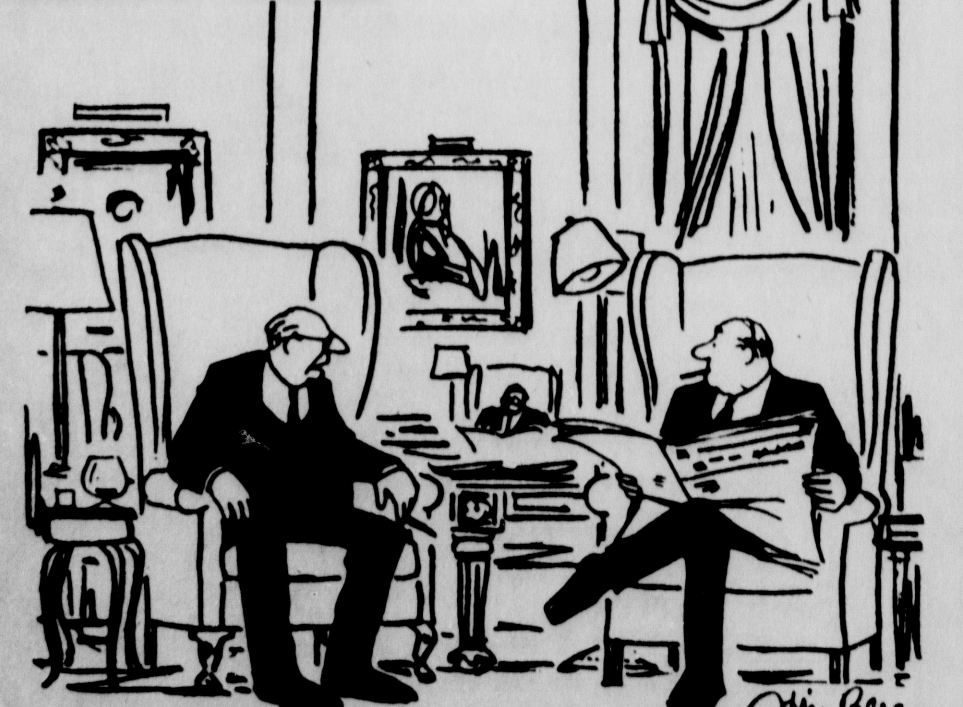

Kissinger concludes that the Vietnamization of the war not only is "sound" but has been "enhanced" by the Laos operation.

"Three years ago," he reminds the President, "ARVN units were engaged against enemy units in and close to South Vietnam's own population centers. Now ARVN units have shown themselves able to deal with the enemy threat in sanctuary areas without the support of US ground combat forces or advisers while keeping their own territory pacified as well."

"They have demonstrated the ability to mount a complex multi-division operation in conditions of difficult and unfamiliar terrain, adverse weather and against a well-prepared enemy. Moreover, this is being achieved with a US presence which has diminished by some 260,000 men since 1969."

Footnote: President Nixon decided not to use the Kissinger-furnished facts in the public debate over Vietnam. He is convinced that most Americans simply want to end the war. Therefore, he has decided to focus his statements more on

Jim: "West will open the king of clubs and probably shift to the four of spades. South will take his ace and go after trumps. East will get in with the king, cash a high spade and lead another one whereupon South will make the rest of the tricks."

Oswald: "It is one of those automatic squeeze situations. He runs all his trumps to come down to three diamonds while dummy holds two diamonds and the queen of clubs and West holds a live rattle-snake."

Jim: "The panel points out that East can break up the squeeze, but I doubt if anyone did it. The break-up play is for East to lead a diamond before cashing even one spade. That leaves West with one extra card and pulls the fangs of the rattle-snake."

Central Was Not To Be Denied in Quest

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

COLUMBIA — Kansas City Central spotted St. Louis Soldan a 10-1 lead within the first three events, but snatched three first-place finishes late in the afternoon to roll to their seventh straight Missouri State High School Activities Association Class L track title, here, Saturday.

Central picked up a surprising fifth in the discus event, while Soldan recorded a first in the long jump and a second in the two-mile relay as the early results rolled in.

However, Central's standout hurdlers Larry Fultz and Rousell Williams snatched second and third in the 120-yard high behind first-place finisher Weader Millentree, Excelsior Springs, to pull the Blue Eagles total to eight, only two points behind Soldan at that stage of the meet.

Soldan Pulls Ahead, 14-8

Soldan's 880-yard relay team grabbed a second in that event to pull ahead, 14-8, but then came the charge of Ken Randle, Central's junior dash star.

Randle won the 440 and 220 dashes, while teammate Rousell Williams picked up a first in the 180-yard lows to give Central a 26-19 advantage over Soldan.

Central added a second in the mile relay to bring their final total to 30. Soldan managed a fourth-place finish in the event, giving them their 21 points for this year's meet.

Klover Earns Points

Sedalia's Paul Klover was matched against Randle in the qualifying heat of the 220 in the morning preliminaries, but could not match Randle's pace. Randle won the heat in a time of :22.3, while Klover placed second on the soggy track with a clocking of :23.0.

However in the afternoon's finals, Klover's final push pulled him to a second-place finish with a time of :22.3, only two-tenths of a second off Randle's first-place time.

Klover was not as fortunate, however, in the 440, as S-C's senior standout was pitted against a slower field in the third of four final heats against the clock.

Klover's clocking of :50.4 in the third heat did stand up in the final results however, as he beat out Harry Armstrong of Kansas City Central for fifth place. Randle won the event with a time of 48.5.

Hewett Clears 13'6"

Smith-Cotton's other points were picked up by Mark Hewett in the pole vault. He cleared the bar at 13'6" to tie his own varsity record and give the Tigers their total of eight points for the meet. Their finish (a tie for tenth) matched their placement in the Class L indoor meet, three months ago in Columbia.

Walsh Establishes Mark

Hannibal's Brian Walsh almost stole the show from Randle, when he toured the quarter-mile circuit in the two-mile run in a new record time for that event.

The slow, wet track seemed to work to Walsh's advantage as he closed out his high school career by turning in a record-setting pace of 9:18.5. The old mark was established last year at the Class L outdoor meet by Jim Benkert of Kirkwood. His time was 9:21.0.

Walsh was nearly a full 20 seconds ahead of his second-place opponent, Otto Schnarr of St. Louis Parkway West.

Relay Mark Bettered

The only other record during the day's meet was established in the one-mile relay by St. Louis Northwest. The new standard, 3:19.5 bettered the old mark set by St. Louis Ritenour in 1967, which was 3:20.9.

Marshall Rogers of St. Louis Sumner established the current record in the triple jump at 45'5 1/4"; this is their first year that that event has been held in state competition.

his major league high, and allowed seven hits. Cleveland is now 4-2.

The Cards' Matty Alou extended his hitting streak to 15 games when he doubled home Lou Brock in the first inning. Julian Javier got a triple off of loser Steve Arlin, 1-6, for two runs in the third. Singles by Ted Sizemore and Cleveland produced two more runs in the sixth. A Brock single scored a run in the eighth.

The double by Parsons broke up a scoreless deadlock in the fifth inning and sent the Royals' Bruce Dal Canton to the showers. Dal Canton, seeking his fifth straight victory, is 4-2.

The Royals were shut out for the second straight day by Milwaukee.

John Briggs got a home run for the Brewers in the eighth off Jim York. It was the first homer off the Royals' pitching staff in 101 innings.

St. Louis plays host again tonight to San Diego, sending Bob Gibson, 4-4, against Clay Kirby, 2-3. Kansas City is idle.

Kathy Whitworth Wins Tournament

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — When Kathy Whitworth was asked about her $10,700 victory in prizes at the Suzuki Golf International, she just talked about Lady Luck.

"I really didn't think I had a chance to win it, not after I shot 39 on the first nine," said the winningest lady golfer of all time.

The 31-year-old from Richardson, Tex., won the $38,000 Suzuki Golf Internationale by two strokes with a final-round 73 Sunday and a three-round total of 217.

Miss Whitworth was two strokes down starting the day as first and second-round leader Sandra Palmer, a fellow Texan, shot rounds of 68 and 74.

McDowell, Michael Tangle

Cleveland pitcher Sam McDowell (17) takes down New York Yankee's Gene Michael in an eighth inning fracas. The fight started when McDowell slid into Michael at second base. The teams split their doubleheader in Cleveland, Sunday. New York won the opener, 6-3, while the Indians snatched the second contest, 2-1. (UPI)

While in Kansas City...

Umpiring Upsets Lane

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Soar, veteran American League umpire, planned to contact AL president Joe Cronin today about Frank Lane's criticism of the umpiring of the first two games here Friday and Saturday between the Milwaukee Brewers and the Kansas City Royals.

Lane is general manager of the Brewers.

Soar and his crew of Larry Barnett, Merl Anthony and George Maloney were the umpires during the series.

Soar and Maloney were blasted by Lane for postponing Friday night's game because of rain. The postponement came with Milwaukee ahead 4-1 and one out in the last of the fifth.

Two more outs would have made the game official.

A double play in the third inning touched Lane off Saturday. This time Lane criticized Barnett when Ellie Rodriguez was called out at first on the play. The Brewers won the game 12-0.

Soar blasted right back at Lane Sunday, saying he hopes the Brewers general manager gets fired.

"He's just a show boat," Soar stormed. "Always has been and always will be. I looked for him and wanted to see him so I could give him a piece of my mind."

"Maybe the next time we have a similar situation that involves Lane and his team, we ought to call him first and ask him what to do."

Soar said he's been umpiring 22 years "and I have never been criticized before under such a condition. We had the ground crew put the tarp on the infield and also had them remove it when the rain stopped briefly but the downpour started again, and the crew covered the infield for the final time.

"I know Lane can't see far enough to make any judgment on a play like he did about the one at first base Saturday."

Soar, his crew and Lane will meet again Tuesday night when the Brewers and the Detroit Tigers get together in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Sjostrom had games of 207, 214, 209, 205, 222 and 188 and led Paula Sperber of Miami, Fla., second with a total of 4,741.

The 24 survivors of Sunday night's action move into semifinals today. The winner will receive $4,000.

Miss Sperber turned in a 269 game in the semifinal block on her way to a 1,222 round.

Ann Feigel of Tucson, Ariz., was third with 4,734; Sarah Clark of Toledo, Ohio, fourth with 4,731.

Item: Blue streaked to his 10th straight triumph, a five-hitter, as Oakland downed Minnesota 3-1.

Item: McDowell survived an eight-inning free-for-all between Cleveland and New York and pitched his first complete game of the season, winning 2-1. Peterson of the Yankees won the opener 6-3 with his first route-going effort.

Item: Parsons, Milwaukee's rookie sensation, hurled a four-hitter and doubled home the Brewers' first two runs in a 4-0 victory over Kansas City.

California trounced the Chicago White Sox 10-5 in the other game.

A crowd of 53,337 turned out in Detroit for McLain's first appearance there since the Tigers traded him away during the off-season. But the pitching of Lolich and two-run homers by Al Kaline and Norm Cash did him in.

McLain was cheered when his name was first announced but they turned to boos when he came to bat for the first time. Lolich, who predicted boos for himself and a standing ovation for McLain, was roundly cheered.

Cash walloped two more homers in the nightcap, one a grand slam, finishing the afternoon with seven RBI. Dalton Jones and Willie Horton hit solo homers as the Tigers ran their winning streak to six games and Washington's losing skein to eight.

Cain, counted on in the spring as Detroit's No. 3 starter, reported earlier in the day from Toledo, where he worked out shoulder problems. The left-hander allowed three hits and struck out six before giving way to Joe Niekro.

Lund Posts Easy Victory At Atlanta

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — DeWayne "Tiny" Lund, who describes himself as "an old dirt dauber," found enough to suit him while cutting the corners on Road Atlanta's asphalt course Sunday as he drove to an easy victory in the NASCAR Lanier 250 Grand American race.

The 250-pound fish camp operator from Cross, S.C., pushed his Camaro past the checked flags in each of the two 125-mile heat races on the 2.53-mile road racing course. He covered the initial heat with an average speed of 82.95 miles per hour despite four laps under the caution flag and increased it to 87.12 for the second 50-lap heat.

Lund's only close call came in an ess curve on the 29th lap of the second heat when he attempted to speed past Bob Tullius of Falls Church, Va. Lund's light blue car went into a spin, swirling in dirt, but he got right back on the course, pitted for fuel and immediately regained the lead he had lost to Gene Felton of Atlanta.

Aggregate totals were used in determining the order of finish, with the best mark in the second heat deciding any ties.

A tie developed for second between Felton and the team of Tullius and veteran Buck Baker. Felton drove his Camaro to fourth and second place finishes. Baker was second in the first heat and Tullius was fourth in the second in the Baker Firebird.

Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., one of the top drivers on NASCAR's Grant National circuit, took fourth place and former television star Dick Smothers shared driving duty with John Greenwood of Troy, Mich., to place fifth in a Cougar.

Boston's Siebert needed his third home run of the season and relief help from Sparky Lyle in the ninth to chalk up his eighth victory. Frank Robinson drove in five runs with a pair of homers in the first game for Baltimore and Dave Johnson also homered as Palmer boosted his record to 7-2.

Robinson, however, struck out for the final out of the nightcap with the potential tying run on third base. The leaders in the AL East thus split their four-game series and the Red Sox went home with a three-game lead.

Oakland's Blue got all the runs he needed against Minnesota in the fourth inning. Jim Perry of the Twins had retired the first 11 batters but Reggie Jackson doubled and Mike Epstein homered. The fireballing lefty hasn't lost since opening day and the only Minnesota run was unearned.

The fireworks in Cleveland started when McDowell slid into New York shortstop Gene Michael while being forced at second base. The two wrestled each other to the ground. Yankee first baseman John Ellis leaped on McDowell's back and pummeled him, then took on anyone in a Cleveland uniform.

The Indians got the winning run off Steve Kline with two out in the ninth on a single by Eddie Leon, a walk and pinch hitter Gomer Hodge's single. Roy White, Frank Baker and Jerry Kenney did the hitting as the Yankees snapped a five-game losing streak in the opener.

John Stephenson drilled a three-run homer and Ken McMullen and Sandy Alomar added solo shots as the Angels turned on the White Sox. Winner Andy Messersmith held Chicago hitless for five innings but was kayoed in the seventh.

Ditzfeld Drops

League Twinbill

CLINTON — Ditzfeld Transfer dropped a league doubleheader to B-L Electric of Clinton by scores of 9-2 and 13-0, here, Saturday night.

Gerald Abney was tagged with the loss in the first contest, while Jim Steele was the losing pitcher in the late game.

Ditzfeld now stands at 0-8 in the conference, but is sporting a 3-9 mark in overall play this season.

Ditzfeld will host LaMonte in a loop twinbill Wednesday in Housel Park.

Puterbaugh in Trouble

Bill Puterbaugh has his hands full as his race car skids backwards towards the wall after he lost control in the third turn during qualifying practice, Saturday, at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Puterbaugh was not injured, though the car caught fire briefly and was extensively damaged on one side. Puterbaugh did not qualify for this year's event. (UPI)

The qualifiers for this $1 million classic, by far the richest auto race in the world, blitzed the 62-year-old Indianapolis Motor Speedway during four days of time trials at a pace not even Johnny Lightning would have believed possible.

Their average speed was a whistling 171.665 miles per hour, a jump of 4.5 m.p.h. over last year's field. Not since 1964, when the late Jimmy Clark made his debut at Indianapolis, had there been that big an increase.

And Pete Revson, a handsome 32-year-old sports car driver from New York City, won the pole position in one of the new winged McLaren cars built in England. His 4-lap, 10-mile speed was 178.696 m.p.h., a hike of 8.4 miles per hour over Unser's 1970 effort.

Not only that, Revson, pulled the track's one-lap record up to 179.354—or 8.2 miles faster than Johnny Rutherford's 171.135 top of a new ago.

The new McLaren's, hatched in the fertile brain of designer-driver Bruce McLaren before he was killed 18 months ago, are low-slung, light-weight machines powered by improved four-cylinder, turbocharged Offenhauser engines. They not only carry a rear-mounted wing, but intricate body work that make them aerodynamically as swift as the wind.

Mark Donohue, the 34-year-old protégé of Philadelphia Roger Penske, put another of the McLaren's in the middle of the front row at a speed of 177.087, while former world driving champion Denis Hulme was fourth fastest in a team car to Revson's at 174.910.

Bobby Unser, the 1968 winner, shares the third front row spot with Revson and Donohue at 175.816 in one of Dan Gurney's Olsenite Eagle-Offys.

Al Unser, whose 1970 triumph was the springboard for a $496,000 season, and the venerable A.J. Foyt Jr., seeking a fourth Indy victory in a new Coyote-Ford of his own design, share the second row with Hulme.

The fourth former winner in the field, Mario Andretti, will start in the fourth row with the veteran Lloyd Ruby, a 12-year visitor to Gasoline Alley, and Joe Leonard, Al Unser's teammate in one of Parnelli Jones' Colt-Fords. Andretti's machine is a radically designed McNamara-Ford designed in Germany and owned by STP millionaire Andy Granatelli.

Mike Marshall's Relief Work Saves McAnally

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Ernie McAnally was faced with one of those life-or-death situations ... until Montreal dialed M for Marshall.

And Mike Marshall came in to rescue McAnally's first major league victory, choking a Pittsburgh rally in the ninth inning for a 4-2 Sunday success.

You couldn't blame the rookie right-hander. After all, he had silenced the heavy-hitting Pirates on two hits and was leading 4-0 going into the last inning. Then he gave up a single and walk and had a 2-0 count on Charlie Sands when Manager Gene Mauch summoned the other half of the M Squad.

Marshall completed a walk to Sands to fill the bases, then gave up a run-scoring single to Manny Sanguillen before throwing a double-play ball that scored the Pirates' second run. He nailed the final out on Vic Davalillo's bouncer.

The Cincinnati Reds whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3; the New York Mets dumped the Atlanta Braves 4-0; the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the Chicago Cubs 4-3; the St. Louis Cardinals romped over the San Diego Padres 6-1 and the San Francisco Giants thumped the Houston Astros 7-4.

McAnally, a converted outfielder in only his fourth year of pro ball, was the Expos' 25th choice in the National League expansion draft in 1968.

He pitched well enough to win his first major league start, but the Expos didn't give him any backing and he dropped a 1-0 heart-breaker to Philadelphia on April 20. Then followed a 3-0 loss to Chicago, 6-1 to Cincinnati and 10-4 to Atlanta. As in his previous starts, the 25-year-old right-hander said he relied heavily on a slider and fast ball Sunday.

McAnally's mates gave him a 1-0 cushion on Jim Gosger's sacrifice fly in the third inning, then Bob Bailey delivered the killing blow with a three-run homer in the eighth.

Tony Perez' two-run homer highlighted a four-run first inning that carried Cincinnati over Philadelphia. After Perez stroked his sixth circuit job of the year, the Reds' scored two decisive unearned runs. Lee May drew a two-out walk off Chris Short and came home on an outfield misplay of Al Ferrara's line drive.

Gene Littler Wins NIT

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "One shot has a way of turning a whole tournament around," said Gene Littler, admittedly a little dazed at his triumph in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation event.

"Without that eagle Saturday, I didn't have a chance of winning. And the birdie at the 13th today kinda got me going."

Five shots back as the final round unfurled Sunday over the windy-whipped par 70 Colonial Course, Littler birdied three of the closing six holes and captured the $25,000 prize by a stroke over Bert Yancey.

Littler set out Sunday at 214, five strokes behind pace-setting Julius Boros and trailing 11 members of the field. In the end, it was Boros, George Knudson, Homero Blancas, Dave Stockton, Yancey and Littler locked in a title fight with the tricky, swirling winds.

Littler fashioned a 69 for a 72-hole total of 283, three over par, the highest winning total in a PGA event since 1963. Yancey closed with a 70 for 284 and $14,300.

Orville Moody, Boros, Knudson and Fred Marti were a stroke back and earned $8,850 apiece. Five others, including Blancas, the defending champion, and Gary Players, were clustered at 286.

Littler, three times a runner-up here, smashed a 7-iron 165 yards into the cup on the 18th hole Saturday en route to a 74, and said before that he would have taken $500 and plane fare home Saturday night.

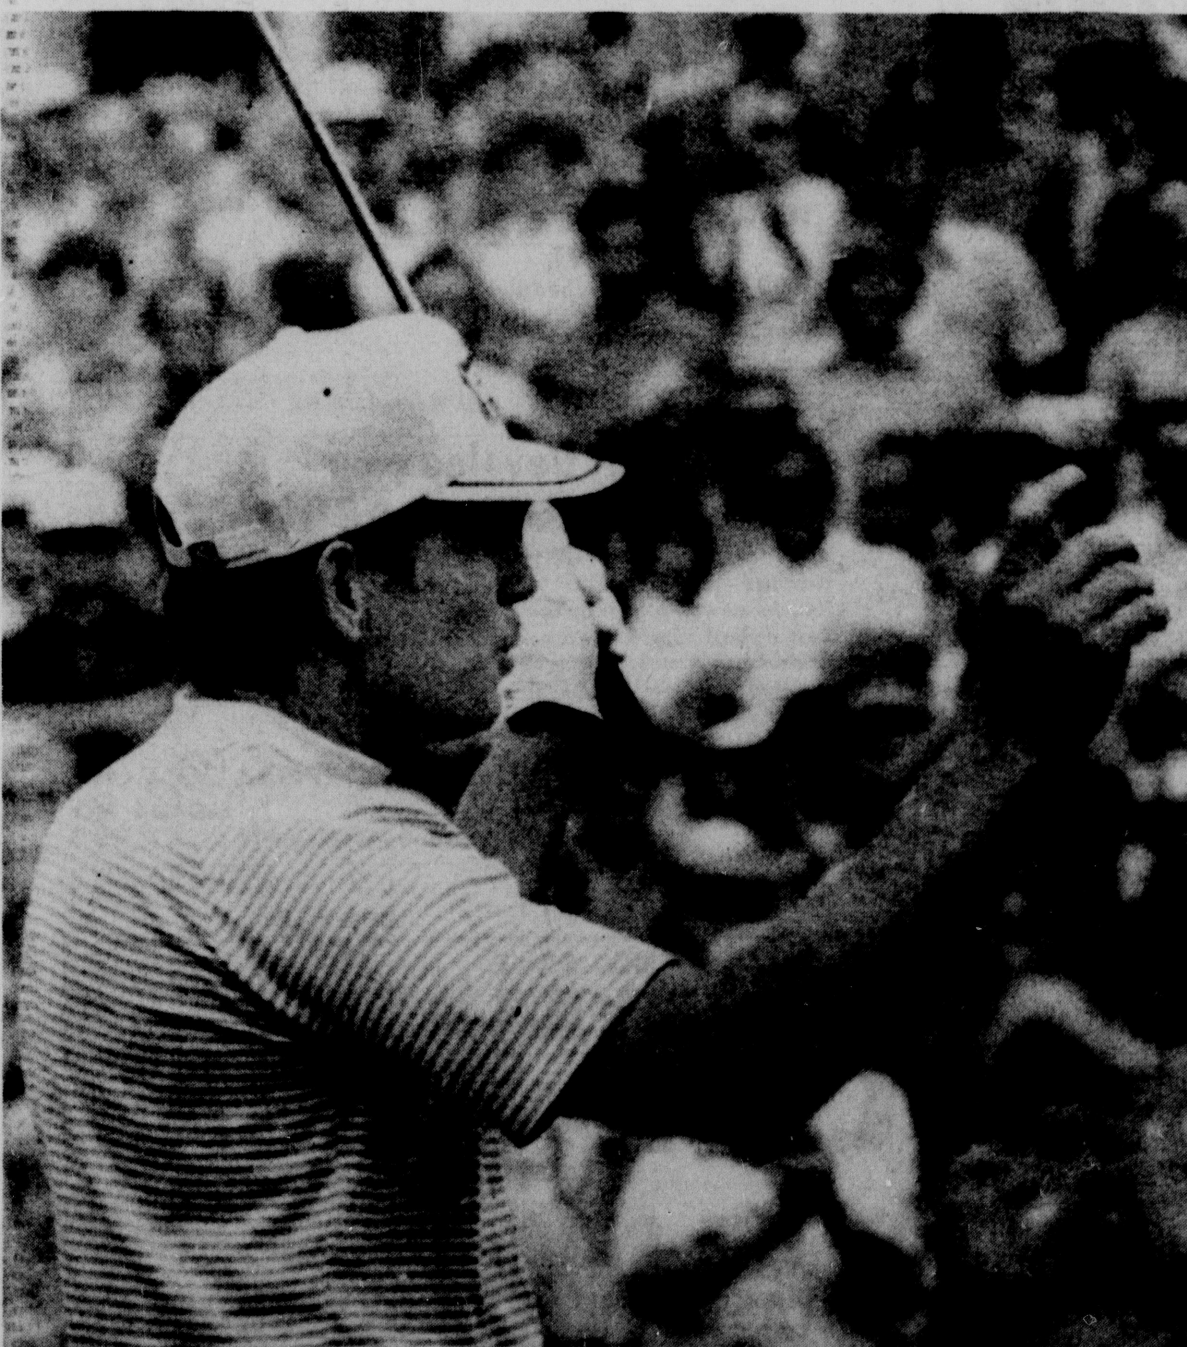

He gave little indication of what lay ahead Sunday, three-putting the first hole and making the turn in two over par 37. He struck first at the 13th, rapping a 6-iron to within six or seven feet and dropping the birdie putt.

The smooth-swinging, 40-year-old Californian rolled in a 35-footer at the 15th to trim away another stroke, then birdied the 16 from eight feet to snatch the lead.

He had a moment of torment at the final hole, bouncing a tee shot off a tree into the right rough and leaving his 4-wood approach short of the green.

But he chipped to within eight feet, sank the putt and vanished into the gallery to await the charges of Blancas, Knudson and Boros, playing several holes behind him. None materialized.

The triumph, Littler's 24th, pushed the new champion's total earnings this year to more than $80,000, most of it in the last six or seven weeks.

Three Over is Good Enough

Gene Littler breathes a sigh of relief as he makes his 10-foot-par putt on the 18th green during the final round of the Colonial National Invitational Tournament Sunday in Fort Worth, Tex. The putt gave him a 283 for 72 holes, the highest PGA winning score since 1963. However, the three-over par performance for the four-day tournament was good enough for the $25,000 first-place prize. (UPI)

On Campaign Funds

Urge Limit Rejection

By JOHN CHADWICK Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst today urged the Senate to reject a proposed $5,000 limitation on individual contributions to candidates for federal office.

He said full disclosure of campaign contributions, not a dollar ceiling, is the way to guard against political corruption.

"Timely publicity would permit the voter to decide whether a candidate's sources of support are unduly concentrated or otherwise suspect," Kleindienst said in testimony prepared for the Senate elections subcommittee.

He was the leadoff witness at hearings on a bill to limit media spending by candidates for President, the Senate and House, to plug loopholes in disclosure of their campaign financing, and to provide tax credits or deductions for small contributions.

Kleindienst generally endorsed the measure of the type of comprehensive legislation called for by President Nixon last year when he vetoed a bill limiting broadcast spending.

However, Kleindienst called for a number of changes in addition to striking the contribution ceiling. He recommended repeal of the existing provision which requires broadcasters give equal time to minor party candidates as allowed major party candidates.

The bill would change this only as it applies to presidential and vice presidential candidates. But Kleindienst said it should apply to Senate and House races as well. "Every argument supporting limited repeal supports total repeal," he testified.

The administration also objects to the bill's separate limitations on media types of spending, Kleindienst said.

The bill limits spending on radio and TV broadcasts to five cents per person of voting age and sets the same limit on expenditures for other media like newspapers, magazines and billboards.

The Justice Department official also proposed a ban on a candidate's use of campaign funds for personal purposes and said violations should be punishable by imprisonment.

Kleindienst also urged establishment of an independent federal elections commission, to police the bill's disclosure provisions. The bill leaves this to the clerk of the House and secretary of the Senate.

The Senate Commerce Committee already has approved the bill, but the elections subcommittee and the Finance Committee have until June 21 to submit their recommendations.

Freight Car Pool Plug

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Amtrak under their belts, the nation's railroads are plugging in Congress for a national freight car pool backed by a federally guaranteed bank loan.

Rid of their unprofitable passenger trains, the railroads are trying to save more money by backing a bill to provide a fleet of freight cars to be rented by shippers or carriers when individual railroads find their own supply is short.

Boxcar shortages have plagued rail shippers for years, especially in the Midwest and West. Railroads claim they can't afford to build new cars, and some find it cheaper to pay penalties for using the cars of other companies for months and even years at a time.

In one celebrated incident, freight cars allegedly missing from Penn Central were found painted over and claimed by a small Midwestern railroad.

The railroads are lobbying for one of several freight car bills sponsored by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, Senate Commerce Committee chairman.

The measure would set up a nonprofit National Freight Car Corp., which would offer for leasing to railroads a fleet of new, general service freight cars.

Free of control by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the corporation would receive initial funding of between $10 million and $30 million to be raised from a 50 cents per car per day surcharge paid by railroads now using other companies' cars.

The federal government would guarantee bank loans for the purchase of new cars and to give the corporation the benefit of the lowest possible interest rates in its financing program.

A controversial companion bill would establish a Railroad Equipment Obligation Insurance Fund and permit the Transportation Secretary to insure up to $3 billion in private loans for freight cars and equipment.

Two railroad presidents, W. Graham Clayton Jr., of Southern Railway Co., and Benjamin F. Biaggi of Southern Pacific, support the car pool concept. Both railroads are among the few in the United States still financially healthy.

One southern Pacific freight car has been missing over three years, the company says. Railroad-owned freight cars in service nationwide fell from 1,444,000 in 1950 to 1,274,000 in 1969.

During that time, Clayton said, freight ton miles handled by the railroads increased from 589 trillion to 768 trillion.

This was accomplished for the most part, Clayton said, through increasing the capacity of new and rebuilt cars and upping the average weights per carload.

Arkansas Patrol Reports Kidnaping

ASH FLAT, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Highway Patrol reports that the president of the Ash Flat Bank, his wife, and their 18-year-old daughter, were kidnaped Sunday night and later released after the bank was robbed.

Authorities said the three were released unharmed near Rector, Ark., around 2:30 a.m. They freed themselves and alerted police.

The amount of the bank's loss was not immediately determined.

Arkansas authorities said the kidnaping took place around 8:30 p.m.

Missouri State Highway Troopers were asked to watch for two men in a white 1962 Pontiac reportedly stolen May 16 at Rockford, Ill.

Miss Pennsylvania Wins Miss USA Title

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Leggy teen-ager Michele McDonald was pushed into the Miss Pennsylvania contest by her confident mother, and Sunday awoke as a "still shocked, but very delighted" Miss USA.

"Mom read an article in the Butler Eagle, our hometown paper," said the 5-foot-8 beauty. "She gave me a shove ... thank goodness, she gave me a shove."

Michele was chosen over 50 other contestants Saturday night in the 20th Miss USA pageant. Texas' Brenda Box of Amarillo was first runner-up.

"My only previous title was Miss Saxonbury," Miss McDonald said Sunday. "That's a town near Butler in western Pennsylvania."

Advancing to Miss Pennsylvania competition scared her. "My state has many gorgeous girls," the 35-24-35 beauty said. Winning was a shock, but nothing to compare with becoming Miss USA."

Michele, 18, is scheduled to graduate from Knoch Senior High School next Sunday. She missed her senior prom Friday night due to the Miss USA competition, and her steady boyfriend Phil Kennedy sat out the dance, too.

Among the awards as Miss USA were $5,000 in cash, a $5,000 mink coat, a wardrobe, and $5,000 in personal appearances.

"That sounds nice for a girl who has never had a bank account in her life," said the daughter of an appliance store manager. "Where in the world will I wear that mink?"

Second runner-up in the Miss USA contest was Susanne Pettenger of Tempe, Ariz.; third runner-up was Nancy Gich of Springfield, Mo.; and fourth runner-up was Patricia Barnstable of Louisville, Ky.

second runner-up; Miss Missouri, Nancy Rich, third runner-up; and Miss Kentucky, Patricia Barnstable, fourth runner-up. Miss McDonald will now represent the U.S. in the Miss Universe Pageant in July.

Adoption Rules Flexible

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Nearly 100,000 children are now living in foster homes in the United States. Their longing to be part of a permanent family is, ironically, often unfulfilled because many couples who want to adopt are certain they are ineligible financially and that their homes won't come up to set standards. Rather than face refusal they don't apply.

The agencies are trying to correct these misconceptions. "Through publicity," said Mae Neely, director of New York's Adoption Service, "we are trying to show middle-income people that money isn't the paramount factor."

"It's nice to have," she added, "but it doesn't make you the best adoptive parent. We are trying to reach the people who can offer a warm home to children. A lot of money isn't necessary."

Agency fees across the country range from as little as $50 to about $1,000, according to income of adoptive parents. And in some special cases the fee is waived. There are also court and legal fees.

"There's a little more flexibility on religion now than there once was," Miss Neely said. "Most states do have something in their adoption laws regarding religion but many have modified the laws."

She spoke of single adoptive parents. "We realize that many families have been well-reared by widowed mothers and that one parent is surely better than none at all. We have even placed a child with a single man. But we like to know that the single parent has a family relationship — aunts, uncles, sisters, brothers, not necessarily living with the parent, but closely associated. We don't believe a child should be sacrificed on the altar of a single woman's loneliness."

Miss Neely believes that the media don't emphasize enough the services available through an adoption agency and that there is a good deal of misunderstanding about how it works with the people who come to them for help.

"Some think that when a desperate girl comes to us right before birth we lick our chops and say, 'Fine. Sign here.' It's not that way at all. We work with these mothers for months — not telling them they should give up their child but looking at the whole picture, explaining that they will have no more legal rights and also no responsibility. We give them counseling and make them feel they have been responsible parents because they did come to an agency."

"If the mother is under 17 we insist that the parents be included in helping her to make her decision. If she's a young girl who wants to get back into school we try to get her back into school. We express interest in the mother as well as the child and try to rehabilitate her."

Independent adoptions where the only cast involved is the biological mother, the doctor, the adoptive parents and a lawyer are less involved at the outset. But they are often more costly and lack the services an agency can give. However, religion in independent adoptions is often not a barrier at all.

Religion seems to be one of the toughest hurdles in adoption. Although many states and agencies now have less stringent laws and policies, all have not. For example, the Holt Adoption Program in Oregon sends out an information letter to prospective clients and devotes nearly the entire first page to defining "Christian homes," and requests that applicants not only state their faith but explain in their own words what Jesus means to them.

Still, if you can bear with the endless questions, all asked for the protection of the child, the agency way seems the safest way to adopt. One man was goaded into flippancy as he answered what he considered one absurd question after another while an agency lady painstakingly recorded his words verbatim. The scene after hours of this procedure went like this:

Q: "What kind of child would you like to have?"

A: "A boy child." She filled in a line.

Q: "Approximate age?"

A: "Preferably a new-born infant." Click went the typewriter.

Q: "Nationality and any other requirements?" That's when he flipped.

A: "Northern European. And I'd like this kid to be athletic, especially good at tennis and he must have a sense of humor." Clackety, clack — then pause.

Q: "Are you teasing me, Mr. A. . . .?"

Polly's Pointers

Makes Better Pockets With Heavier Material

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My pet peeve is with the manufacturers of work trousers with thin pockets that soon get holes and need constant mending. Men are aggravated by holes in their pockets and we women are not pleased with this constant mending chore. I finally solved this by ripping out those flimsy pockets and making new ones out of heavy-duty cotton. But why should new pants require this extra work? — LOIS

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. R. W. J. wanted to know how to keep the dye from her shoe lining from fading on her hose and feet. I had this problem and returned the shoes to the store where they were purchased and they returned the full price saying nothing could be done to seal the dye and that a chemical reaction between my skin and the dye caused this "bleeding." — MRS. K. B.

DEAR POLLY — As a last resort Mrs. R. W. J. might try spraying the inside lining of her shoes with that spray used to protect fabrics from soil. This might afford enough protection to prevent the colors from fading on to her hose and feet. — MARY

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for the families who love watermelon and mothers who dislike the mess of juice and seeds all over the kitchen. The minute a watermelon is brought into my house it is cut into eating-sized pieces, seeds are removed and it is all placed in a container with a tight fitting lid. The children are free to help themselves, there is no bickering about who gets the heart, no watermelon rinds in the sink, no juice on the counter tops or seeds throughout the house. It is certainly easier to store as it takes up less room in the refrigerator. Be certain you have a container with a tight-fitting lid as few people like watermelon-flavored butter. — MRS. E. M. W.

DEAR POLLY — Whenever tornadoes or electric storms are predicted and doors and windows have to be opened a bit for ventilation, the safest place to keep candles is to place them in holders and then set these in the bathtub or sink. If one should blow or topple over nothing catches on fire. — MARLENE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We have two fraternal organizations who use white plumes on the hats to their dress uniforms. How can these plumes be cleaned and curled? — MRS. A. A. W.
